1. Enclosed are copies of the letters of thanks received from some of the deans who attended your presentation at the Program for Deans last month. It was a huge success and we thank you for your help in conducting our first such program.

2. We are planning to conduct another Program for Deans in April 1986. We will contact your secretary after the first of the year to get the next presentation on your calendar.

3. Again thank you for your excellent presentation and your continued support of this important program.

Dear [Redacted]

STAT

I want to thank you for a most enjoyable and very informative day at the Agency yesterday. I felt that the program was well designed and excellently carried out. The only suggestion I have is made from nearly total ignorance: to whatever extent it is possible, I believe that participants would benefit from seeing some of the working places and work going on in the building. I am thinking of a probably necessarily very restricted tour. But whatever could be done would give that much better feeling for how the Agency functions.

However, first and foremost is my gratitude for being included in such an excellent program.

Sincerely,

James B. Riles
Acting Dean

Dear [Redacted]

I am writing to express my sincere appreciation to you and to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for a most informative and productive day on November 18. The information shared with the invited educators was extremely useful and will enable me to apprise our students and faculty of opportunities that CIA offers.

Again, thanks for your hospitality and for inviting me for the CIA briefing.

Thank you for the opportunity to participate in the program that you organized for academic administrators.

I found the program to have been very informative, as well as a rewarding experience. I left with a better understanding and keen appreciation of the services that professional agents at the CIA give to our country.

Again, thank you for the opportunity to participate in the program.

If I can every be of assistance to you, do not hesitate to let me know.

Dear [Redacted]

Finally I am able to spend the few minutes necessary to express appreciation on behalf of all the deans who attended the program on November 18, 1985. I claim to speak for all of those who attended, but in reality I can report on my own impressions. I suspect, however, that my reaction parallels what the others experienced.

The largest impression the visit left with me was the frankness with which information was divulged and the honesty with which questions were answered. To pretend that I made the trip without a mixture of skepticism and puzzlement would be naive. That I emerged with considerable information and respect I shall confess. Areas of concern for the methods employed by the CIA still exist, but I have greater sympathy for the ultimate purposes held by both Agency personnel and Americans in general.

The need for identification of capable, balanced, and creative persons to serve in the Agency was well presented. The encouragement of those persons will be easier for me to do now that I have a clearer picture of the activities of the Agency. As a professor of English as well as a dean, I was particularly impressed by the oft-echoed plea for recruiting persons who can read and write, whether in English or in other languages.

Your selection of deans instead of (or in addition to) other administrators probably was correct. We know which students are capable and the types of programs through which they are passing.

Thank you for expanding my vision.

Sincerely yours,

Dear John:

I would like to thank you and your colleagues for the PROGRAM FOR DEANS I were privileged to attend yesterday. The presentations were most helpful. Together they provided me with a much clearer understanding of the role of the CIA. It would be hard to say where the day might have been improved.

And too, I enjoyed meeting John Stein and [redacted] at lunch. Are they available to speak, in their official capacity, to groups such as our Chairmen in the College of Arts and Sciences? I have in mind a banquet in late January for Chairmen and spouses, and some staff people. The case you people were making for general/liberal education would be warmly received. The Chairmen are the academic leaders in the College of Arts and Sciences, chosen by their peers and dean.

1. Thank you for meeting with the 17 college deans and heads of major institutes who visited Headquarters on 18 November.

2. Informal feedback at the end of the day suggests that the invitees were quite impressed with their visit to the Agency and our relationships with at least the campuses represented by this group have benefited greatly. Comments along the line of "This is the most worthwhile day I have ever spent" -- "I never have learned so much about anything in just one day" -- "I didn't expect the CIA to be so forthright and to be willing to discuss sensitive material" are typical.

Again, thank you very much for your support, and particularly for squeezing this into a busy schedule.

SUBJECT:

DCI's Program for Deans

STAT

1. On Monday, 18 November, Mr. Casey will host a visit by twenty academic deans. This program is a sequel to the annual visit by college presidents. In reviewing the former program, we found that over 70 presidents had already visited the CIA; and there were not many others with whom we wanted to develop a closer relationship.

2. We request that you host a clean-up session with the invited deans on 18 November between 1530 and 1600. They will have started the day with a welcome by Mr. Casey and have heard each of the deputy directors. Your session would be an opportunity to make a few final remarks and to answer any lingering questions arising from the earlier presentations.

3. There will be a mixer and luncheon in the Executive Dining Room for this group (1200-1330). If your schedule permits, we would like to include you in this session as well.

SUBJECT: Visits by University/College Presidents

1. Action Requested. Your approval of a change from visits by university/college Presidents to visits by university deans and heads of major institutes is requested.

STAT

2. Background. Since 1978 the DCI has hosted a program of one-day visits by university and college presidents to the CIA. To date there have been twelve such visits and we have hosted a total of 73 presidents/chancellors. Since it has been our policy not to repeat a visit when there is a change in assignment, over 70 institutions have been represented in this program. A list of the attendees at previous sessions is attached.

4. Although this may appear to be a program worth pursuing in terms of the new contacts that we could generate, I believe that it is with the college deans and heads of major institutes that we should be developing a better rapport. These are the officials who oversee the research and administer the educational programs of a university. The university presidents are more representational, mainly responsible for fund raising. Most of all, it is through the college deans that we stand a better chance of attracting high quality students to a career in intelligence and it is through them that we can make an impact on campus by offering assistance in the conduct of courses on the national security process and intelligence. There are over 100 academic insitutions currently teaching such courses and it is in our interest to cultivate these professors and deans.

5. Recommendation: That you approve a shift in focus in this program to invite college deans and heads of institutes instead of university presidents to visit Headquarters and that we plan for the next visit in November 1985.
